"So how is it going?" Lynnette the social worker asked as she pulled a chair up to the king-sized bed on top of which 10-year-old Maurice sat.

"Good," Maurice replied. "That's good, real good," she said. "So how's school coming along?"

"School? School's OK."
"That's good. Making lots of friends?"
"I got lots of friends," Maurice answered, a little confused.

"When I went to school, I had lots of friends, too," Lynnette said as she began to tell a little about all the kids she used to hang around with. She was stalling.

There was a rumbling in the room next-door, Maurice's bedroom. Maurice looked around confused as if to say, 'what's going on here?'

"Well, we're going to do something different today, you and I," Lynnette offered. "What do you say if today, we have our talk over at McDonalds?"

"Oh. OK, I guess," Maurice answered.

The two walked out of Charles and Lisa Harris' bedroom, Maurice's foster parents for 7 years. They were standing at the door with ashen faces as Lynnette and Maurice approached. They hugged Maurice as he passed and bid him goodbye. Lisa had to turn her face and walk away. — Finish Maurice's story at
