ROCKPILE BOOKSTORE

- in the Rockpile TODAY, including a 365-day NKJV Bible reading plan with daily devotionals for 50% off.

It was nearly 18 hours before the big event, but a line of families began to form at the gate. Parents snuggled with their children in blankets on the ground, on chairs, even in tents, just to be sure they would be one of the first through the doors. No, it's not a Black Friday sale or a sell-out concert. It's the ever-growing, 17th annual Toys for Joy event in southeast San Diego. Held at Abraham Lincoln High and Walter J. Porter Elementary schools, the outreach is organized by Rock Church, along with 16 other area churches, numerous sponsors and donors.

Many families were willing to camp out and brave the chilly overnight temperatures in order to make Christmas more memorable with extra groceries, clothing, and toys that many of them just can't afford. Over 8,700 guests were served this year, and each year, the number increases as the proportion of struggling families grows.
