Joanna Daniels was 19 years old and sitting in the doctor's office—again. She had spent her entire life sick in one way or another and had ingested on a long list of medications that, over time, had messed with her system so badly, she could not recall when she did not feel awful. To make matters worse, the last few years had seen her nearly doubled over every time she ate. Now, by being in the doctor's office once more, she was again looking for answers to the question that she had asked herself a thousand times, What in the world is wrong with me?

When the doctor came in, Irritable Bowel Syndrome was his diagnosis. His plan of treatment? Medication—for the rest of Joanna's life.

This just wasn't going to do. Over the next seven years, Joanna tried every regimen, diet, cleanse and read every book on nutrition to try to find a way to eat her way back to health. Still, the crippling pain reverberated around her body every time she ate. At the end of her rope, she realized that the only book she had never consulted was the Bible.
